Correction to: Journal of Computational Social Science
<https://doi.org/10.1007/s42001-023-00238-3>

In the original publication, the author has found few errors which is as follows:

1. All occurrences of 85 million in the article should read/replaced as 163 million in the article.
2. In the Dataset and methods section, the text Web scrapers² were used to download.pdf files from these websites, which were then converted into.txt format using the command line utility QPDF should read as Web scrapers² were used to download.pdf files from these websites, which were then converted into.txt format using the command line utility pdftotext.

In the above text, the author found that word QPDF should be replaced as pdftotext. Besides, this text has been updated due to changes in the spacing and also due to superscript.

The original article has been corrected.
